Ashcraft Easement

Our Mission

The Owl Creek Conservancy is a private nonprofit organization dedicated to conserving natural and agricultural lands in the Knox County Area through widespread private action. We work with landowners for the public good to maintain and to improve the quality of life now and in the future by conserving farmlands, stream corridors, aquifer- and watershed-protection areas, wildlife habitats, woodlands, scenic vistas, and ecologically sensitive areas of environmental, historic and community importance.

A note from the desk of our president

Stepping into the president's role last July, I felt truly honored to succeed Ray Heithaus, who set a high bar for land conservation in Knox County. In my first year, my main goal has been to better understand easements and to learn how to advocate for them effectively.

Easements significantly impact land use and acquiring them is the crucial first step in protecting land for the future. They are an indispensable tool for conserving land while also safeguarding the long-term land use goals of the landowner. While securing these easements is important, ongoing stewardship is essential to sustain them. Long after we are gone, the Owl Creek Conservancy will live on, maintaining and protecting these easements in perpetuity.

With the capable resolve of the board and staff of the Conservancy, we continue to move forward. Our organization has made significant strides in protecting farmland, habitats, and ultimately, our collective future. This past year, we extended our reach by acquiring easements on approximately 322 more acres of critical land, expanded our community outreach programs, and launched several new initiatives, such as transforming our Annual Meeting into a more casual and welcoming Annual Gathering.

Through strong partnerships and your generous support, we have continued to protect vital lands, helping maintain the rural character of our area. As we look ahead, we remain committed to promoting sustainable practices, strengthening policy advocacy, and ensuring the lasting preservation of Knox County's natural resources.

Together, we can continue to protect our countryside for generations to come.

Thank you for your unwavering support!

Our Newest Easements: Ashcraft

by Vicki Kauffman

Rick and Matt Ashcraft run a father-and-son grain operation in the Fredericktown area. They rent ground in addition to raising crops on their own land, and in any given year will farm about 2,000 acres. Because farming full time, raising young twin girls and serving as a Wayne Township trustee isn't enough to keep him busy, Matt also farms on a smaller scale. He raises sweet corn in the summer which he sells at his farmstand on Cassell Road, and in the fall, he raises and sells unusual varieties of pumpkins. It's a hard-working lifestyle, and one that suits Rick and Matt well.

The Ashcraft projects were a challenge because their Protected Property covers approximately 322 acres in two townships on three roads, and is in five parcels that were held by three different combinations of titleholders. This unique situation resulted in four separate conservation easements. Partially because of external factors such as title searches, surveys, and appraisals, an easement easily takes a year to complete. The fact that the Conservancy and the Ashcrafts were able to pull off four easements simultaneously is an accomplishment and a testament to how important it was to the family to protect their land. The Ashcrafts were cautioned against committing their land to conservation by those who thought they should consider the increasing development price their farmland could bring. Rick firmly stated, “No amount of money is worth losing farm ground. Once it's gone, it's gone.”

The Ashcrafts' Protected Properties are primarily dedicated to agricultural use. The first easement is on Bryant Road, where Matt and Candace live, and is next door to the Brad and Melinda Lanker Protected Property. The second Protected Property on Dean Road is fully cultivated. The remaining two easements are located side by side on Cassell Road, where seven acres have been designated as a Riparian Area, safeguarding over 1,000 feet of the North Branch of the Kokosing State Scenic River.

The board and staff of the Owl Creek Conservancy thank the Ashcraft family for their steadfast commitment to preserving farmland in Knox County.

The purchase of the four Ashcraft easements was funded by donors who wish to remain anonymous. They are long-time supporters of the Conservancy and have been incredibly generous to us and to Knox County. We thank them from the bottom of our hearts.

Land Steward Report

by Jeff Wells

In my role as the Land Steward for the Owl Creek Conservancy, I oversee the enforcement of conservation and agricultural easements on Protected Properties. Once an easement is established on a designated "Protected Property," my team and I take the necessary steps to post signage that identifies the land as "private property," safeguarded by the Owl Creek Conservancy. This crucial task not only delineates the property boundaries but also upholds the rights of the landowner (Grantor).

The Owl Creek Conservancy monitoring team physically visits each Protected Property at least once a year to ensure the easement conditions are followed.

This sign has been deliberately damaged

We also handle the repair and replacement of signs affected by Mother Nature, agricultural machinery, theft, or intentional damage. During our property patrols, we monitor for signs of encroachment, such as trespassing, as well as any incidents of damage, dumping, or other activities that could breach the easement. We then communicate our observations to the Grantor and offer assistance as needed to address any identified violations, including conducting follow-up visits if required.

Policy & Fundraising Committee Reports

by Harry Itagaki

Policy Committee:

As chairperson, I, along with fellow board members Carol Detmer and Beth Waller, have dedicated much of the past six months to refining and updating the bylaws and board manual of the Owl Creek Conservancy. An updated version of the bylaws was approved in May, and we are currently reviewing various sections of the board manual. This effort has led to the removal of inconsistencies, outdated language, and irrelevant information, with the aim of enhancing the clarity and conciseness of the board manual.

Fundraising Committee:

The fundraising committee is comprised of Kim Davidson, Marcie Steen, and myself, Harry Itagaki. We began our work in the fall of 2023 by reviewing previous fundraising initiatives and brainstorming innovative strategies to secure the necessary funds for our Endowment Fund and the annual budget. With significant support from Vicki Kauffman and Jodie Phelan, the committee has gained valuable expertise in utilizing Little Green Light, a donor management software, allowing them to monitor memberships and donations with greater accuracy and efficiency. Our efforts to recruit new members and boost participation are ongoing, and we aim to enhance our fundraising practices. Additionally, we hope to increase the number of members who include us in their estate plans through our Planned Giving Program.

Outreach Committee Report

by Marcie Steen

Each month, the outreach committee convenes to plan and organize events, as well as to brainstorm innovative ways to inform the public about the work of the Owl Creek Conservancy and the significance of land conservation. This committee was established in early 2022 to:

- Improve relations with existing easement Grantors as well as perspective Grantors
- Increase awareness of the Conservancy within its membership and in the general public
- Grow and strengthen our membership

$10,000 Matching Grant a Success!

by Vicki Kauffman

At the beginning of 2024, the Owl Creek Conservancy was informed by the Knox County Foundation that an anonymous benefactor had pledged $10,000 to match donations made to the Conservancy's Endowment Fund by December 31, 2024.

The Endowment Fund is an asset managed by the Knox County Foundation and is a true endowment, meaning that the principal cannot be distributed. All (100%) of the annual income generated by the Fund is fully available for cash distribution. If the Conservancy does not request a distribution, the income is added to the Fund's principal.

The daily operations of the Conservancy rely heavily on the Endowment Fund. Currently, the Conservancy oversees 48 conservation and agricultural easements across four counties, encompassing 5,610 acres, and we are actively engaged in four more projects. This requires extensive management! Without the Endowment Fund, the crucial work we do to safeguard the lands and waters of the Knox County Area would not be feasible.

Thanks to the extraordinary support from our community, we surpassed our fundraising target. In a short period of time we received an impressive influx of generous donations, totaling nearly $18,000 and taking us well beyond our goal!

Join us in welcoming Jodie to the Owl Creek Conservancy family!

by Vicki Kauffman

The Conservancy was fortunate to hire Jodie Phelan in October of 2023 as a part-time assistant to the director. Jodie handles the daily tasks of the office and oversaw the migration of decades of data when the Conservancy transferred to its new non-profit database system, a lengthy and involved project. Jodie channels over 30 years of floral industry design experience into creating attractive, eye-catching mailings and social media posts, and making our website more welcoming and user-friendly. Thanks to her creative ability, all of our outreach materials, both paper and digital, are generated in-house, which saves the Conservancy both time and money. Always on the lookout for ways to be thrifty on behalf of our non-profit, she searches out opportunities from coupons to grants, and most recently landed a $500 grant for promotional items.

Jodie lives near Centerburg with her husband Mark and dogs Lexie, a Red Heeler/Great Pyrenees mix and Wilder, a recent rescue from the Licking County Humane Society. She owns an Etsy store dedicated to handcrafted cryptid ornaments – Ornamental Gal on Etsy.com. She and Mark enjoy traveling the world and spend time every year at her family’s cabin on Lake Michigan.

Harlow Walker is a Licensed Professional Counselor and maintains his role as a private practice lawyer and mediator, boasting over 30 years of experience. Before this, he served for 12 years as an Officer in the U.S. Marine Corps. After his service, Harlow returned to Knox County to settle on part of his family's farm, where he and his wife, Christine, initiated a reforestation project 25 years ago by planting 10,000 hardwood and spruce trees. They cherish spending time outdoors with their three adult children and six grandchildren, enjoying activities such as hiking, kayaking, biking, and traveling. Harlow's favorite mantra for well-being is: "If you're not outside, you're separated from reality."

Treasurer's Analysis of 2023 Results

Annual Gathering ~ June 23rd, 2024

In the fiscal year 2023, Owl Creek Conservancy received a total of $413,644 in gifts and contributions. The organization faced increased fixed expenses in 2023, primarily due to a higher number of easement acquisitions and the cost associated with hiring a part-time Administrative Assistant.

Investment markets proved beneficial for Owl Creek Conservancy in 2023, leading to unrealized gains of $367,278 in the portfolio of funds with the market value up for the year $453,948. To support anticipated activities for the year, $106,500 was withdrawn.

Currently, over 5,600 acres are preserved through 48 easements. The Stewardship Fund holds reserves of $378,603, equating to $67.41 per acre or $7,887 per easement.

The 2024 Budget reflects an increase in wages and related payroll costs, as well as an expectation of higher expenses for Easement Acquisitions, despite no new easements closing so far this year. With these expected activities, further distributions from the funds are planned.

To date, the investment market remains favorable for Owl Creek Conservancy, with unrealized gains from the four funds reaching a total of $191,156 in 2024.
